THE LODHI NEW DELHI “Everyone has room, but how many hotels boast 40 swimming pools?” asks the General Manager. Yes, 40 private plunge-pools sit in the balcony of each sprawling suite. Splashes in privacy, although you might be sharing water and the sexy pool-edge dryied with mynahs and pigeons. Never share the fabulous cookies (chocolate, oats, herb), savoury snacks, gunches and almonds the suites so generously stock.

Bedtime brings local specialty Chhoki in sesame, almonds, rose petals... And if Chanty is doing you a facial in the exclusivity of your suite, she bears post-treatment treats like cereal bars. You’d think the Lodhi abets in-suite gluttony. But it is crafty: two super chefs ensure you restrain private excesses and splurge on its dining options.

Spunking new restaurant On The Waterfront convives the city’s elite who showcase themselves in the all-glass private dining enclave poised stunningly on flowing waters. Design is as slick as the Suízi, service as delicate as the Dim Sum. To avail yourself of the chef’s salad, teppanyaki, noodles and abundant helpings of delicious service, better book yourself in for several nights.

Also imbibe the vibe at Elan’s al fresco terrace. Succumb to all this-filled Manager Nikhil Verma’s recommendations: dairy breakfast Idlis, Sticky Toffee Pudding (the owner’s favourite dessert, Nikhil reveals) and Chocolate Fondant (Nikhil’s favourite dessert).

By the pool (yes, they have 41 pools or perhaps 41 pools, for this recreation of a royal tank is a pool-and-a-half) try the Conscious Menu including inspired calorie-quenched Our Uplift and Red Rice Daalbowl. Dynamic young Exec Chef Bhargav has plusher plans for supper: private dining on the flower-dressed balconies of the eighth-floor suites. Circumnavigating the ineffable entertainments of his Hyderabadthai to the serenade of a flautist. Haute Gastronomie (literally, on the hotel’s loftiest floor) attains its apotheosis in perfect Pistaahale Kulf.

BTW, the fanciest cars park in The Lodhi’s porch, so those attending staying here had better be driving a Rolls-Royce or a Porsche...

LEBUA RESORT JAIPUR Businessmen love it. Why not, when all that glitters is gold here? Precisely designed on the jewel concept (Jaipur being the ‘Gem City’), Lebua’s lobby walls blaze metal faceted diamond-like, crystal-speckled floors scintillate; red sofas resemble rubies, and intense red interiors exude richness. Restaurant Vaja has silver pillars shooting into gilded diamond-shaped domes from which metal-framed lamps fashioned into diamonds drop like solitaire earrings.

A jewellery box construct encases the three villas hued in gold, silver and copper, laced in enthralling mirrors and latticework. Villas boast a sulphur-stretch pool and paintings penetrating nine depth-penetrating glass panels. Suites standing on crescent-shaped ways strike in gemstone colours: ruby, emerald, blue and glorious yellow sapphire offset by zigzagging black-and-white tiled floors.

Bejewelled bedheads captivate, jewel-themed paintings and walls, while swanlen Jacuzzis face private courtyards. Intricately Galtaji Temple where a water body apparently springs miraculously following a rishi’s meditation. Dayanam enthusiastically recommends a visit; do break business to sneak away to this beeswax and spiritually enriching shrine. For businessmen entrench in worldly affairs but with other-worldly tastes, traverse Lebua’s space-shuttle-like corridors to the space-age ballroom fetching conference guests galore, galaxy-sensation Chaka Bar.

Get set for jetset Jaipur!
THE SOFALÀ GOA Waxed in verdant wonder and exuding pizzazz, pillsed in puddy fields and embraced in soft hills. Breathtakingly elegant with a chic white façade and a pool like an emerald ring encircled in pillared Portuguese columns. Caesarian courtesy fashion designer Tarun Tahiliani. The villa’s rooftop infinity pool seems bewitched by the magnificent mangrove spread and bellowing palms.
Suits: lavish dark handmade wood floors expressing its Goan-Portuguese heritage, four-poster beds, exquisite drapes, lean yet lavish upholstery. But the most tasteful aspect of the suites is the complimentary cocktails and mock bar… On verandas antique-like arm chairs gaze at sleek modern seats lounge around the pool. The villa personifies sophistication.

The Italian restaurant impreses, but ask for Chef manny for his Goa extravaganza. If you are seeking a bank and don’t businessmen ever, this unique “lifestyle hotel” is conveniently banked on the Sinquerim River.
Draw liquid cash like water!

patterened Jaipur-red walls everywhere…
The spa borders the jazziest infinity pool. Bond-style boardroom…

Architecturally fascinating private dining enclaves include the open-air geometric sunken dining space and the stunning amphitheatre that is popular for business cocktails. Star has a上述 but the amphitheatre too seems like a star descends.

Now, boy-Chef Dhananjay Singh crafts magnificent Lakshmi and Rajasthani thalis finished in spectacularly good homemade Rose Petal and Mango Kulfi and ice creams of fresh rose petal, peanut, cinnamon and ginger. The endearing Manager Dayanam can discuss Vedanta, whilst his youthful colleague Ankit marries sweetness with spiciness.

Lebua also does scrumptious breakfasts and the best lunches in Rajasthan. Lugger over thickening Citrus or Beetroot-Avocado Salad and astonishing homemade pastas! (you wouldn’t believe a non-Italian effected these) unless exploring Thai Chef Prayun’s exoticity.

Lunch outdoors and feast on the spread of like Anwar Range creding for ancient

Photos: Cronuts Have Gone International

Today in our Priority Inbox Folder: "Cronut Craze Reaches Bangkok." Click! The Cronut has finally made its way overseas, where it is called the Croughnut. And also just plain of Trademark (pending?) Cronut. Here is how they're doing it over there: without the capabilities of the pastry's founding father, Dominique Ansel. But the Cronut is bigger than Ansel now, it's bigger than all of us.

And that’s fine ... as a wise young man who wasted hours on line for a Cronut once pointed out, "It doesn't suck that Cronuts exist, it sucks that Hostess exists. It doesn’t suck that people are wasting on line for a pastry, it sucks that there is a line and not, say, many bakeries selling many croussant-doughnuts. At a certain point, money (and how it’s used) can (and must) be a form of political expression. I am less inclined to criticise a superficial problem (that this pastry exists and people line up at the expense of more fundamental ones (say, the availability and price of Ho-Hos)."

ALL YOU CAN EAT CROUGHNUTS IN BANGKOK

The Croughnut is being served in Bangkok's Café Mozu, inside the luxury Tower Club at lebua. There, Executive Pastry Chef Gilles Delaplay and Chef Blaker Adrian Dott have whipped up a Mint Yogurt Croughnut, and placed the item on their breakfast menu. We're told “the chefs are planning next to make croughnuts with more traditional Thai flavors. Currently, they’re making 150-200 per day.” Also, they are all-you-can-eat! We were told this morning that “they are part of the buffet breakfast which costs 600 Thai Baht per person (roughly $19 USD). They are not for individual sale. Since it’s a buffet, you can go nuts and eat as many Croughnuts as you like.”
